

Annotated Map of Lewis and Clark's Track, Across the Western Portion of North America, Samuel Lewis, 1814

This map has a lot of geographic distortion, which makes it difficult to represent modern placename locations. Many compromises had to be made to give the best representations possible.
 Annotations of Modern Placenames, © 2019 Steve F. Russell, Historic Trails Research, Ames, Iowa, Feb 15, 2019

This map has much more geographic knowledge in it than possessed by William Clark. It appears that much of the information provided by Samuel Lewis came from other sources. In particular, the maps and journals of David Thompson (1809-1812), William Price Hunt (1811-1812), and Robert Stuart (1812-1812).

Steve F. Russell, Historic Trails Research, Ames, Iowa 2019

Original: Map of Lewis and Clark's Track, Across the Western Portion of North America, Samuel Lewis, 1814

https://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/6/6c/Map_of_Lewis_and_Clark%27s_Track%2C_Across_the_Western_Portion_of_North_America%2C_published_1814.jpg ACCESSED: Feb 18, 2019